JACKSON GIVES OUT NAMES OF NEW DEPUTIES

Calvin Coolidge Says:

By CALVIN COOLIDGE

Newport Beach; G. F. McKelvey, of Huntington Beach; L. H. Nicholson, of the police force, of Santa Ana, and F. A. Wilbur.

Cora M. Kurlie, present office deputy, will remain in her position under Jackson, as will Herman J. Zabel, Santa Ana, head of the identification bureau. Clara Wing, Santa Ana, will remain as office deputy and Fred Humiston, Santa Ana, will remain as court bailiff.

Theodore Lacy, Jr., will be jailer. Lacy, a Santa Ana man, served as jailer under his father, Theodore Lacy, Sr., when the latter was sheriff.

As turnkeys Jackson has appointed W. S. Young, deputy marshal at Anaheim; R. D. Lippincott, of Laguna Beach, and C. E. Virgoe, of Orange.

In addition to Humiston, the court bailiffs will be C. E. Dixon, of Santa Ana, and H. A. Wassum, of Tustin, former member of the board of supervisors.

In announcing his appointments, Jackson said: "I believe by appointing these men I will be able to give the people of Orange county an efficient administration. I believe these men are in favor of and in sympathy with the policies to be used in the sheriff's office." Jackson pointed out that the deputies had been selected after the most careful investigation and that they had been highly recommended by persons throughout Orange county.

In modeling the sheriff's office after that in Los Angeles county, Jackson said that he would create four divisions and that the office henceforth will be known as a department. The four divisions will be designated civil, criminal, jail and criminal identification. Each division will have sub-divisions, or details. The same plan of organization will be followed in any sub-stations which may be established.

Jackson said his decision to model the department after that in Los Angeles was made following a careful study of organization and methods in all of the surrounding counties of the Southland except San Diego county.

WHITMORE TO RESIGN POST ON JANUARY 6

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 24.—(UP)—Another result of the $8,000,000 embezzlement by Gilbert Beesemeyer from the Building and Loan association of Los Angeles last today by the resignation of Charles A. Whitmore, state building and loan commissioner.

Governor C. C. Young, in making the letter of resignation public, announced that it would be accepted, effective January 6, the day that he turns his office over to Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco.

"I might plead," Whitmore said, "that according to the signed confession of the defalcator, this systematic looting has gone on since the formation of the association 10 years ago; that it has been so cleverly manipulated as to escape the attention of all previous commissions; and that my office was the first to bring it to light."

"All these things do not lessen the fact that, rightly or wrongly, public confidence has been so shaken that it is impossible for me to continue."

Young agreed with Whitmore that building and loan associations in California were stronger financially today and expressed his confidence in the absolute integrity and ability of the commissioner.

Whitmore in his letter stated that he had spent more money, gone over the building and loan companies' books more often, and enforced regulations more thoroughly than any preceding commissioner. He was resigning, he stated, to avoid Young an embarrassment and because of the shattered public confidence.

Whitmore, former state highway commissioner, state printer, private secretary to Governor Young, and one time member of the board of education under former Governor Hiram Johnson, was appointed to his present post in August 1929. In October 1930 he was given a four year term appointment, the legislature having changed it from a position, handed out by the governor, to a term.

CHURCHES HOLD YULE PROGRAMS IN PLACENTIA

PLACENTIA, Dec. 24.—Christmas programs at the various churches were the center of interest in Placentia Tuesday evening and each drew capacity audiences.

At Calvary church, a pageant representing a family celebrating a "practical Christmas" was presented, and which included exercises by various departments and songs by the choir and Sunday school was presented under the direction of Don Milligan.

The church was beautifully decorated, the vestibule being carpeted in sparkling white with snowflakes falling from the ceiling and inside the auditorium a huge white Christmas tree and white draperies carried out the theme.

At the Church of the Nazarene a program of songs and exercises was completed by a pageant by the young people, illustrating "The First Christmas."

Another pageant, "The Road to Bethlehem," was presented at the Presbyterian church and included exercises by the Sunday school and songs by the choir. Here, too, beautiful Christmas decorations brought the spirit of the season nearer to each one of those present.

HUNTINGTON, N. Y.—Paul H. MacNeil has perfected an instrument which, it is said, can "see" through fog, and which will be of great aid to airplane pilots. It is somewhat similar to the radio compass, and employs a projector of infra-red rays from a fixed point on land. A unit on the plane picks up these rays, and transforms them into electrical impulses which are recorded.

The adult man should weigh about 110 pounds for five feet in height, with five and a half pounds added for each inch above this figure.

Widow Offers Savings To Aid Needy

Here is a case of the true Christmas spirit. It comes from the office of W. S. Gregg of the county welfare department.

"I have three dollars here that I have saved up. Perhaps you can give the money to someone that needs it to have a Christmas this year."

The speaker was an elderly woman who came to Gregg's office with her offering. She has been doing housework and washing to make a scanty living for herself. She has not accepted county aid, except in the matter of securing jobs, and in the course of weeks of hard work, she had saved up a bit of money. Believing that someone else might be worse off than herself, she was ready to give it away.

Gregg assured her that he knew of no one who needed it more, or was better entitled to enjoy it, than herself, but she urged him to let her know if he discovered any case where the money was needed, so that she might give it.

"This looks to me like a real case of the 'widow's mite,'" said Gregg.

mass the apex is screened from the public eye, a few Europeans close to the chancel being privileged to see the ceremonial robing and disrobing of the patriarch clothed alternately in gold and scarlet.

Here again the grand simplicity of the architecture dominates the congregation. Women in glittering evening dress kneel beside farm lassies in coarse clothing before the small chapel. Highly manicured fingers and calloused hands receive the same wafer and benediction from the same priest.

A king of England once supplied lead for the roof of the Church of Nativity and Turks at the end of the 17th century stripped the lead to make bullets. Today, however, a few police under the direction of an English officer are sufficient to keep order.

Here 90 per cent of the population is Moslem, but no Mohammedan dare show his face. The country is the "national home" of the Jews, but no man known to be a Jew dare enter the church on Christmas day.

CITRUS FRUIT NOT DAMAGED BY COLD SNAP

Reports received here this morning from different farm centers throughout the county revealed that do damage worth mentioning had resulted from the low temperatures registered last night and early this morning.

In the Tustin district the thermometer went down as low as 26 between 3:20 and 4 a. m. It was reported by Ross Shafer, but due to adequate smudging, no damage was caused to the citrus fruit.

At Orange the temperature reached the low mark at about 6 o'clock this morning, registering 27. Firing of the heaters, which started at 4 o'clock this morning, brought up the thermometer readings above the danger point.

Inquiries at the Orange County Farm bureau and at the offices of the county horticultural commission disclosed that while low temperatures were reported in different sections, adequate smudging had prevented damage to the fruit orchards.

Purdue Injured In Car Accident

J. W. Purdue, 19, of 2101 North Bower street, received cuts about the head at 10 a. m. today when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by a car operated by W. R. Richards, of Ontario, at Second and Birch streets.

According to witnesses of the crash, the Purdue machine had almost cleared the intersection when it was struck by the Richards machine. No one was arrested.

Police News

A boy and girl runaway from Los Angeles, who appeared here early today seeking a marriage license, were taken into custody by Santa Ana police officers and are being held for Los Angeles authorities. They were Anita Ortega, 15, and Ramon Ybarra, 18, both residents of Los Angeles.

Gus Viner, 44, Santa Ana, was arrested by Officers Swain and Murillo last night at Second and Sycamore streets, on a drunk charge.

Ernest Rhodes, 49, Santa Ana, was arrested on a charge of being drunk, by Officer Lon Morris, and lodged in the county jail. Morris said Rhodes had been drinking denatured alcohol. The arrest was made at Fourth and French streets.

Charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, Rollin W. Barnes, 25, of the Richelleu hotel, was arrested at Fourth and Ross streets last night by Officer Heard. He was lodged in the county jail and is expected to be given a hearing in police court today where the charge will be reduced to reckless driving.

Fifteen Persons Secure Work At City Job Bureau

Yesterday was the best day for the city free employment office since its opening. Fifteen persons were sent out to work in response to calls that came in to the office, and prospects were developed which will lead to still further employment within the next few days.

Hearty appreciation was expressed by the applicants, as well as by the management of the employment office, for the co-operation that has been shown, not only by the people in general, but by the county welfare department, the Salvation Army, the various departments of the city, and others who have been helping to find or create jobs.

The office will be closed on Christmas day, but will be open again for business on Friday, with as much need as ever for jobs for the unemployed.

cated, perhaps on a smaller scale, against Senator McMaster in South Dakota and Senator Schall in Minnesota.

And it was under these circumstances that the issue of drastic or lenient federal control of Hydro-electric Power issues had been aggravated by discharge of Solicitor Charles F. Russell and Chief Accountant William V. King by the new power commission.

When Norris bolted the Hoover-Curtis ticket to support Governor Alfred E. Smith in 1928, he stated repeatedly that he acted because of Mr. Hoover's position against government power operation. Discharge of Russell and King, who opposed power company efforts to obtain more lenient treatment, was cited by Democrats and Progressive Republicans as reflecting Mr. Hoover's theories on federal control.

The power issue and the effort of Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, to defeat Norris in Nebraska combined today to make the veteran progressive the leader of any third party movement if one should come.

BURGLARS GET $30 IN TWO S. A. STORES

Burglars entered two Santa Ana places of business early today, stealing $30 in cash from one place, but failing to get anything of value at the other, according to police reports.

A burglar broke into the Enna Jettick Shoe company store at 212 West Fourth street at 6:30 a. m. today, by climbing through the transom over the front door. Per-sons in the building at the time, heard him, but did not pay particular attention, believing that the noise was made by workmen.

A total of $30 was taken from the cash register, but none of the stock was disturbed. The money was deposited made by customers on shoes for Christmas.

A thief who entered the Washington Bakery, at Washington avenue and North Main streets, during the early hours of the morning, ransacked the place, but took nothing of value, it was reported. Entrance was made through a rear window.

The poor population of Portugal is to share in the $125,000 profits which have come to the government through public gambling resorts.

LOCATION OF DEPARTMENTS IS ANNOUNCED

Location of the various county departments in the new court-house annex, formerly St. Ann's inn, was revealed yesterday by Dr. F. W. Slabaugh, county purchasing agent, who is in charge of the work under the direction of the board of supervisors.

Offices of W. S. Gregg, aid commissioner; Nat. Nutt, highway superintendent; W. K. Hillyard, purchasing agent; and the Orange county library, under Miss Margaret Livingston, will be located on the first floor. The road department will be located in the space formerly occupied by the kitchen; Hillyard will have quarters in the front of the old dining room and a vault will be built to keep valuable records; the library will go in the west part of the dining room; Dr. Slabaugh's offices will occupy the lobby; and the welfare department will have the south wing.

On the second floor will be located Dr. K. H. Sutherland, health officer; A. A. Brock, agricultural commissioner; Harold Wahlberg, farm adviser; and the Orange County Farm bureau, of which Roland Flaherty is executive secretary. The health department will be located over the lobby; Brock's offices will occupy the south wing; and Wahlberg and the Farm bureau will have the north wing. A small assembly, seating 75 persons, will be maintained in connection with the Farm bureau offices.

The third floor will house the offices of the planning commission, the flood control engineer, Murray Thompson; and the county superintendent of schools.

Many changes will be made in the location of offices in the courthouse and hall of records following the installation of the above named departments in the annex. Joe Backs, county clerk, will take over the entire west wing of the courthouse, including the room now occupied by the supervisors and the county auditor's quarters will be moved from the courthouse to the rooms amb in the hall of records. The supervisors' quarters will be moved to the old auditor's office in the courthouse.

From the second floor of the courthouse, the district attorney's quarters will be moved to the hall of records and occupy the offices now used by the agricultural department and the county superintendent of schools. The county law library, which is now partly housed in a downtown office building, is to occupy the rooms vacated by the district attorney.

In the hall of records, the tax collector's office will be moved to the quarters now occupied by the purchasing agent and the surveyor. County Recorder Justine Whitney will remain in the offices now occupied by her department. The treasurer will occupy the rooms being vacated by the road department. On the second floor, the probation department will move to the northeast corner, now being used as offices of the health department leaving a room to be used as a jury room for department three of the superior court. Coroner Charles Brown will remain in his present quarters.

Dr. Slabaugh stated that the task of assigning the new quarters had been very difficult and that the various changes had been made strictly on the basis of business convenience and service to the public.

EXPECT LOOS MARK TO STAND UNBROKEN

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Dec. 24.—The 71 scored yesterday by Eddie Loos of Pasadena was expected to stand unbroken today when a field of nearly 100 golfers complete qualifying for the January $25,000 Open tournament.

Yesterday's 18-hole round provided as an erratic list of golf scores as have been turned in through major competition. Scores of well known professionals ranged all the way from 71 up into the 90's. A brisk wind that died suddenly around noon accounted for the varying marks.

Fifty low professionals and the five best amateurs in the 36-hole competition will be chosen to complete the field for the $25,000 open, January 13 to 17. Approximately 50 qualified automatically through the national open and P. G. A. championship and were exempt from playing in the qualifying rounds.

UNIQUE STORY TOLD TODAY IN REGISTER 'AD'

"Goodbye to 1930 and depression! Good day to 1931 and prosperity!" seems to be the general message of one of the cleverest advertisements which the Register has ever been privileged to run, and which is appearing today in the columns of this paper, in the space reserved by Vandermast Inc.

In preparing the copy for the display advertisement, E. T. Mater, member of the firm, declared today that this holiday season has been one of the most successful ever enjoyed by the store, and that patronage had been all that might be wished. This fact, he attributed directly to the "Buy in Santa Ana" campaign launched by the Lions club which he endorsed personally as well as in the advertisement, declaring that it had been one of the finest things which a service club has ever done for the city.

"When it was first launched, Walter Vandermast asserted that if it brought results, and yielded us a normal business for the holidays, it would mean continued prosperity for the store," Mater explained. "Vandermast said that in that case, he would feel justified in continuing with improvements which he hoped to put in on his ranch. The season was such a good one, that Vandermast stated this morning that he was prepared to continue the necessary arrangements for laying two pipe lines with the work to start at once. It seemed such a gratifying proof of prosperity, that we felt it should be incorporated in the advertisement as showing the direct results of the 'Buy in Santa Ana' campaign," and the laudable efforts of the Lions club.

In augmenting their force for the holiday trade, members of the Vandermast firm employed all local men, moving along the lines of the slogan, and will see local men through their January clearance sales soon to be inaugurated.

ORANGE COUNTY REGION SOUGHT AGAIN BY L. A.

E. C. Eaton, Los Angeles county flood control engineer, was a member of a delegation that appeared yesterday before the board of supervisors in connection with an attempt to gain permission from the county for Los Angeles county to purchase a strip of land approximately 300 feet long on the point of Los Alamitos bay near Seal Beach.

Other members of the delegation were Harry Waup, member of the Long Beach city council, and J. V. W. Steel, a property owner near the tract which Los Angeles county desires to purchase. The matter was originally presented to the board last week. The land is desired in connection with a joint park and flood control project.

Eaton informed the board yesterday that detailed plans are now being reviewed by a consulting engineer and that no definite decision has yet been reached.

ed relative to some factors of the project and the board decided to take no action until the matter was definitely determined by Los Angeles county authorities. The tentative plan calls for opening a channel for the San Gabriel river outlet, which swings across into Orange county under the flood control program, and Eaton declared there would be jetties between 700 and 1400 feet of either side of the mouth, built out into the ocean to protect the adjacent beaches from debris. He asserted that Los Angeles county would guarantee to keep the beaches free of debris and that it was believed that work would result in building up more beach on each side of the jetties. Condemnation proceedings are under way for the right-of-way of the channel, but the land which is sought to be purchased lies in Orange county and the consent of the county government must be obtained before it can be purchased by Los Angeles county. The territory would still remain part of Orange county.

TO CONSTRUCT NEW HIGHWAY AT PLACENTIA

Answering a request of the Placentia Chamber of Commerce for opening a new route into that community from the south, the board of supervisors yesterday informed T. E. Pickrell, secretary of the civic organization, that the matter would be taken care of and County Superintendent of Highways Nat Neff was advised to start the necessary proceedings.

The communication to the board, which was further supported in a statement by Pickrell, asked that Melrose avenue be opened from Crowther to Orangeflower avenues, a distance of approximately 1300 feet. There are five property owners affected and four are in harmony with the movement. It was declared that the matter would be taken care of and County Superintendent of Highways Nat Neff was advised to start the necessary proceedings.

It also was pointed out that this improvement is one that would open a direct route from the south, would connect with the community known as La Jolla and also would benefit the citrus associations in that district in their fruit hauls.

The board also took action on the request of the city of Brea for permission to annex nine acres known as the sewer farm, to that community. The matter was presented to the board by Attorney H. A. Gauer, who filed the necessary petitions and asked that the board grant its permission for the acquisition of this county territory by the city of Brea. January 6 was set as the date for the hearing on the matter.

An appropriation of $250 was made by the board to the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce for use in the annual Christmas week regatta and celebration. The warrant was ordered drawn on the emergency fund.

Bids were ordered advertised for work and material in connection with installing linoleum floor covering at the new court house annex. Specifications are on file at the office of the county purchasing agent.

Necessary legal papers were received from the Santa Fe Railroad company granting easements for widening Grand avenue in Buena Park. The road is to be made 15 feet wider along the stretch of highway immediately adjacent to the station and 10 feet wider farther to the north.

An application for a position as a member of the state highway police was received from George Royd, county jailer, which was ordered filed.

BROCK ENDORSED FOR STATE OFFICE

A. A. Brock, Orange county agricultural commissioner, and Prof. Ralph Adams were endorsed for the office of director of the state department of agriculture at a meeting of avocado growers held at the Washington school in La Habra last night.

George Hodgkins, manager of the Calavo Growers of California, spoke on advertising campaigns and the distributing plants of the organization in the east. Earl Dutton, of Anaheim, told of picking operations.

Ray Frantz was re-elected a director from the group to the central association. Some 50 growers attended the session.

DIRECTORS OF EXCHANGE WILL GATHER MONDAY

Frederic W. Sanford, secretary-manager of the Orange County Builders Exchange, today announced that the newly elected directors of the exchange will meet next Monday noon at Santa Ana cafe for the purpose of electing executive officers for the coming year. Through an error it was announced a few days ago that the election of officers was to be held at noon today, Sanford added.

Sanford also announced that suggestions have been made to the county board of supervisors to the effect that, in calling for bids on county construction projects, a larger number of sets of plans and specifications be prepared by the architect in charge of this work, which arrangement would permit interested contractors to retain such plans until the date set for opening the bids. In the past it has been the practice to send plans around twice or three times, thus allowing the contractor on the last round to have the plans when the bids are made up, Sanford explained. Under these conditions, it was pointed out, with the present keen competition, and with bids from sub-contractors coming in on the last day for submitting general bids, contractors find it difficult to submit intelligent bids.

Sanford added that he has received a 200-page, illustrated bulletin, entitled "Light Frame House Construction," prepared jointly by the national committee on wood utilization of the Department of Commerce and the federal board for vocational education, which may be viewed at the offices of the organization.

The seating capacity of the Yankee Stadium in New York is 80,000, and the record attendance at a baseball game was 85,265 during a double-header in 1923.

FORTY YEARS OF FAITHFUL SERVICE TO THE INVESTORS

STATEMENT ON CHRISTMAS IS MADE PUBLIC

At the request of a group of newspapers the Christian Science Sentinel has sent out the following statement for publication:

A Christmas Sentiment

"Christmas should be a holy day, not merely a holiday. We should pause in common pursuits to freshen our gratitude for the birth of Jesus and for his life-work. More than this, we should enlarge our preparation to follow in the way he showed. In particular, each of us should newly dedicate himself to the idea of Christian service expressed in Jesus' words: 'I am among you as he that serveth.' (Luke 22:27.)

"The Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy, spoke of Christmas as follows: 'Today the Christ is, more than ever before, the way, the truth, and the life,'—'which lighteth every man that cometh into the world,' healing all sorrow, sickness, and sin.' At this immortal hour, all human hate, pride, greed, lust should bow and declare Christ's power, and the reign of Truth and Life divine should make man's being pure and blest." (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany 257:13).

OCEANVIEW, Dec. 24. — The Parent-Teacher association of Oceanview will sponsor a concert to be given on the evening of January 30 at the school auditorium as a P. T. A. benefit, the program to be presented by the Santa Ana Conservatory of Music under the leadership of the director of the conservatory and of the Santa Ana band, Caesar Cianfoni.

It has been arranged by the committee in charge of preparations for the concert to sell home-made candies at the school that evening.

Oklahoma Woman Called By Death

BUENA PARK, Dec. 24.—Mrs. Audrey E. Hinds, who came last month with her husband and sons to visit her brother, Claude Bizzle, passed away Tuesday morning, leaving to mourn her loss her husband, C. L. Hinds; two sons, Claude and Gordon; three brothers, two sisters and parents, all residing in Oklahoma with the exception of the brother in Buena Park. The body was taken to the Stone Funeral parlors and was sent to Macombe, Okla., today.

500 PERSONS SEE CHURCH PAGEANT

A crowd of approximately 500 persons filled the tabernacle of the Four Square Gospel church last night, when the annual Christmas program was presented. A pageant, under the direction of Mrs. Alice Wilson Parham, Emma A. Williams and Rose Swanson, was appreciated by the large audience.

Each department of the church had a part in the pageant, with the children having the first part and the adults the second part. Flood lights aided effectively in the scenes portraying the shepherds and the wise men. After the program 200 boxes of candy were given to the children present.

Several urgent calls for assistance have been received from needy families by the church, according to the Rev. Wilfred Parham, pastor, and baskets are being prepared today for distribution. Food, blankets and clothing will be included.

Building Totals $120,573 In Year

SAN CLEMENTE, Dec. 24.—During the past year, 28 structures were erected in San Clemente at a cost of $120,573, according to figures released by Ed Bartlett, building inspector. This total does not represent money spent on gas, sewer, paving, light or other construction work. It is estimated that construction for the year totals a million dollars.

In the building figures are represented a 25-room house, super service station, church, aquarium, restaurant and smaller homes and businesses.

MARTIN SELLS THE GOODS

Very spirited bidding was the order of the day at Simmons Auction Tuesday. And after four different buyers had exercised their right, the place was knocked off for the price of $3450 to M. C. and Lula Rall who were the successful bidders. Furniture also sold well. The radio selling for $75.

"It is easy to sell property now in spite of slow business," says L. E. Martin with office at 121 W. 3rd street. With the years of experience that Martin has had, he knows how to advertise to get buyers, and then knows how to handle the sale to get spirited bidding for the offering. When Martin takes your property he is interested in getting the most for it from the time it is listed until the last stroke of the hammer.

"Good or bad times property can be sold by auction," Martin evidently knows for he is selling where others fail.

If you have anything to sell see L. E. Martin, auctioneer, 121 West 3rd street.—Adv.

SEWAGE WATER USE DISCUSSED BEFORE BOARD

Attention of the board of supervisors was directed yesterday by William C. Mauerhan, of Katella, a member of the Orange County Farm bureau water conservation committee, to the possibility of securing authority from the state legislature at the next session to take action in connection with utilizing sewage water.

Mauerhan declared that people in his district were worried and alarmed over the water situation, with levels of wells approaching sea level depth, and that he had recently been informed by a Los Angeles engineer who is conducting sewage water reclamation experiments that more water is running to the ocean in Southern California through the sewers than can possibly be conserved by expensive flood control methods on the Los Angeles, San Gabriel and Santa Ana rivers combined.

The visitor to the board suggested that the board confer with District Attorney Z. B. West and draft some legislation for presentation to the legislature, which convenes next month, so that the matter could be further studied and action taken if necessary. He also suggested that other means of conserving water might be included in such action.

The board at its session today canvassed the vote of the recent election on the creation of a sanitary district at Seal Beach, and found that the measure had been endorsed by a vote of 61 to 9.

A delegation of American Legion members and officials and National Guard officers was scheduled to be heard by the board. The delegation was seeking financial support toward sending a picked detail of 50 men and four officers from the guard companies of the county to act as guard of honor to James Rolph at his inauguration as governor. The ceremonies are to be held at Sacramento on January 5 and the Orange county guard company has been invited to furnish the guard of honor.

Members of this delegation were Hunter Leach, commander of the Santa Ana post of the Legion, Major Winans, of the Guard unit, Al Wunderlich, captain of the Orange company of the national guard, H. O. Wallace and Ray Smith of the Orange Legion post.

Pickering Freed Of Theft Charge

F. S. Pickering, half owner of the Crystal Cleaning works, of Huntington Beach, today was freed of a charge of grand theft in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court, for lack of evidence. He was arrested several days ago on complaint of his partner, D. T. Johnson, who alleged Pickering robbed him of $1500 when he sold half the business to him more than a year ago.

Evidence brought out in the case disclosed that the two men had been partners for 11 months before Johnson found out there was a chattel mortgage on the business. The mortgage has been paid off by Pickering since the complaint was filed.

Juvenile Court To Handle Boy's Case

Ted Baker, Santa Ana youth, arrested by Santa Ana police Sunday on a burglary charge, was transferred to the juvenile court from Justice Kenneth Morrison's court yesterday.

The Scarab Murder Case

A PHILO VANCE STORY BY S. S. VAN DINE

"I can manage this impetuous gentleman," he said. Then he lifted Salvester to his feet and shoved him back into his chair. "A little lesson in manners," he remarked pleasantly. "And now you will please be civil and answer my questions, or I'll be compelled to have you—and Mrs. Bliss—arrested for conspiring to murder Mr. Kyle."

Salvester was completely subdued. He looked at his antagonist in ludicrous amazement. Then suddenly Vance's words seemed to seep into his astonished brain.

"Mrs. Bliss?... She had nothing to do with it, I tell you!" His tone, though highly animated, was respectful. "If it'll save her from any suspicion, I'll confess to the crime."

"No need for any such heroism," Vance had resumed his seat and was again smoking calmly. "But you might tell us why, when you came into the museum this afternoon and learned of your uncle's death, you didn't mention the fact that you'd seen him at ten o'clock."

"I—I was too upset—too shocked," the man stammered. "And I was afraid. Self-protective instinct, maybe. I can't explain—really I can't. I should have told you, I suppose... but—but—"

Vance helped him out.

"But you didn't care to involve yourself in a crime of which you were innocent. Yes, yes. Quite natural. Thought you'd wait and find out if any one had seen you.... I say, Mr. Salvester; don't you know that, if you had admitted being with your uncle at ten o'clock, it would have been a point in your favor?"

Salvester had become sullen, and before he could answer Vance went on.

"Leavin' these speculations to one side, could we prevail upon you to tell us exactly what you did in the museum between half past nine and ten o'clock?"

"I've already told you," Salvester was troubled and distraught. "I was comparing an Eighteen Dynasty papyrus recently found by Doctor Bliss at Thebes with Luckenbill's translation of the hexagonal prism of the Annals of Sennacherib in order to determine certain values for—"

"You're romancing frightfully, Mr. Salvester," Vance broke in quietly. "And you're indulging in an anachronism. The Sennacherib prism is in Babylonian cuneiform, and dates almost a thousand years later." He lifted his eyes sternly. "What were you doing in the museum this morning?"

Salvester started forward in his chair, but at once sank back.

"I was writing a letter," he answered weakly.

"To whom?"

"I'd rather not say."

"Naturally," Vance smiled faintly. "In what language?"

An immediate change came over the man. His face went pale, and his hands, which were lying along his knees, convulsed.

"What language?" he repeated huskily. "Why do you ask that?.. What language would I be likely to write a letter in—Bantu, Sanskrit, Walloon, Ido...?"

"No-o." Vance's gaze came slowly to rest on Salvester. "Nor did I have in mind Aramaic, or Agao, or Swahili, or Sumerian. The fact is, it smote my brain a moment ago that you were composin' an epistle in Egyptian hieroglyphics."

The man's eyes dilated.

"Why, in Heaven's name," he asked lamely, "should I do a thing like that?"

"Why? Ah, yes—why, indeed?" Vance sighed deeply. "But, really, y' know, you were composin' in Egyptian—weren't you?"

"Was I—What makes you think so?"

"Must I explain?... It's so deuced simple." Vance put out his cigarette and made a slight deprecatory gesture. "I could even guess for whom the epistle was intended. Unless I'm badly mistaken, Mrs. Bliss was to have been the recipient." Again Vance smiled musingly. "Y' see, you mentioned three words in the imaginary papyrus, which you have not yet satisfied."

"Most unfortunate," Vance sighed; "for your phraseology in that letter made it appear that you were contemplating taking drastic measures."

"I know it!" Salvester caught his breath. "That's why I lied to you. But the fact is, Mr. Vance, the letter was innocent enough. I know it was foolish, but I didn't take it very seriously. Honest, sir, it was really a lesson in Egyptian composition—not an actual communication."

Vance nodded non-committally. "And where is this letter now?"

factorily translated—ankhet, wash, and tema. But since there are scores of Egyptian words that have thus far resisted accurate translation, I wondered why you should have mentioned these particular three. And I further wondered why you should have mentioned three words whose meaning you did not recall, which so closely approximate three very familiar words in Egyptian.... And then I bethought me as to the meaning of these three familiar words. Ankh—with a determinative—can mean the 'living one.' Was—which is close to wash—means 'happiness' or 'good fortune'; though I realize there is some doubt about it—Erman translates it with a question-mark, as Gluck. The tema, you mentioned with a double flourish, is unknown to me. But I of course am familiar with tem spelt with a sledge ideograph. It means 'to be ended' or 'finished'. Do you follow me?"

Salvester stared like a man hypnotized.

"Good God!" he muttered.

"And so," Vance continued, "I concluded that you had been dealing in the well-known forms of these three words, and had mentioned them because, in their other approximate forms, their transliterative means are unknown. And the words fitted perfectly with the situation. Indeed, Mr. Salvester, it wouldn't take a great deal of imagination to reconstruct your letter, being given the three verbal salients—to wit, the living one, happiness or good fortune, and to be ended or finished."

Vance paused briefly, as if to arrange his words.

"You probably composed a communication in which you said that the 'living one' (ankh) was standing in the way of your 'happiness' or 'good fortune' (was), and expressed a desire for the situation to be ended or 'finished' (tem)."

"I'm right, am I not?"

Salvester continued staring at Vance in a kind of admiring astonishment.

"I'm going to be truthful with you," he said at length. "That's exactly what I wrote. You see, Meryt-Amen, who knows the Middle Egyptian hieroglyphic language better than I'll ever know it, suggested long ago that I write to her at least once a week in the language of her ancestors, as a kind of exercise. I've been doing it for years; and she always corrects me, as well as advises me—she's almost as well versed as any of the scribes who decorate the ancient tombs. This morning, when I returned to the museum, I realized that the Metropolitan did not open until ten o'clock, and on some sudden impulse I sat down and began working on this letter."

"Most unfortunate," Vance sighed; "for your phraseology in that letter made it appear that you were contemplating taking drastic measures."

"I know it!" Salvester caught his breath. "That's why I lied to you. But the fact is, Mr. Vance, the letter was innocent enough. I know it was foolish, but I didn't take it very seriously. Honest, sir, it was really a lesson in Egyptian composition—not an actual communication."

Vance nodded non-committally. "And where is this letter now?"

Vance nodded non-committally. "And where is this letter now?"

he asked.

"In the drawer of the table in the museum. I hadn't finished it when Uncle Ben came in; and I put it away."

"And you had already made use of the three words, ankh and was and tem?"

Salvester braced himself and took a deep breath.

"Yes! Those three familiar words were in it. And then, when you first asked me about what I'd been doing in the museum I made up the tale about the papyrus."

"And mentioned three words which were suggested to you by the three words you had actually used—eh, what?"

"Yes, sir! That's the truth."

"We're most grateful for your sudden burst of honesty," Vance's tone was frigid. "Will you be so good as to bring me the uncompleted epistle? I'd dearly love to see it; and perhaps I can decipher it."

Salvester leapt to his feet and fairly ran out of the room. A few minutes later he returned, to all appearances dazed and crestfallen.

"It isn't there!" he announced. "It's gone!"

"Oh, is it, now?... Most unfortunate."

Vance lay back pensively for several moments. Then suddenly he sprang to his feet.

"It's not there! It's gone!" he murmured. "I don't like this situation. Markham—I don't at all like it. Why should the letter have disappeared? Why... why?"

He swung about to Salvester.

"What kind of paper did you write that indiscreet letter on?" he asked, with suppressed excitement.

"On a yellow scratch-pad—the kind that's generally kept on the table."

"And the ink—did you draw your characters with pen or pencil?"

"With a pen. Green ink. It's always in the museum..."

Vance raised his hand in an impatient gesture.

"That's enough. Go up-stairs—go to your room—and stay there."

"But, Mr. Vance, I—I'm worried about that letter. Where do you think it is?"

"Why should I know where it is?—provided, of course, you ever wrote it. I'm no diving-rod." Vance was deeply troubled, though he sought to hide the fact. "Didn't you know better than to leave such a missive lying loosely about?"

"It never occurred to me—"

"Oh, didn't it?... I wonder." Vance looked at Salvester sharply. "This is no time to speculate. Please go to your room. I'll speak to you again. Don't ask any questions—do as I tell you!"

Salvester, without a word, turned and disappeared through the door. We could hear his heavy footsteps ascending the stairs.

CHAPTER XV
Vance Makes a Discovery
(Friday, July 13; 4:45 p. m.)
Vance stood for a long time in uneasy silence. At length he lifted ed his eyes to Hennessey.

"I wish you'd run up-stairs," he said, "and take a post where you can watch all the rooms. I don't want any communication between Mrs. Bliss and Salvester and Hani."

"Those are orders," the Sergeant informed him; and the detective went out with alacrity.

Vance turned to Markham.

"Maybe the priceless young ass actually wrote the silly letter," he commented; and a worried look came over his face. "I say; let's take a peep in the museum."

"See here, Vance," Markham rose—"why should the possibility of Salvester's having written a foolish letter upset you?"

"I don't know—I'm not sure." Vance went to the door; then pivoted suddenly. "But I'm afraid—I'm deuced afraid! Such a letter would give the murderer a loop-hole—that is, if what I think is true. If the letter was written, we've got to find it. If we don't find it, there are several plausible explanations for its disappearance—and one of 'em is fiendish. But come. We'll have to search the museum—on the chance that it was written, as Salvester says, and left in the table-drawer."

He went swiftly across the hall and threw open the great steel door.

"If Doctor Bliss and Guilfoyle return while we're in the museum," he said to Snitkin, who stood leaning against the front door, "take them in the drawing-room and keep them there."

We passed down the steps into the museum, and Vance went at once to the little desk-table beside the obelisk. He looked at the yellow pad and tested the color of the ink. Then he pulled open the drawer and turned out its contents. After a few minutes' inspection of the odds and ends, he restored the drawer to order and closed it. There was a small mahogany waste-basket beneath the table, and

Vance emptied it on the floor. Going down on his knees he looked at each piece of crumpled paper. At length he rose and shook his head. (To Be Continued)

M'GRAW PLANS BIG SHAKEUP

Wade Soft-Pedals Alabama's Praise

COACH EXPECTS HARDEST GAME FROM COUGARS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PASADENA, Dec. 24.—(UP)—The Alabama football team may be great but Wallace Wade won't say so.

There are no superlatives in Coach Wade's vocabulary when he is talking about his football team which arrived here late yesterday to meet Washington State in the Tournament of Roses game New Year's day.

"We've done pretty well so far," said Wade, "but we have been very fortunate in getting the breaks. Fine spirit, strong defense and good blocking are probably our strongest points."

Those words seem a bit modest when Alabama's formidable record of winning nine straight games and holding the opposition to 12 first downs and 2 touchdowns is considered, but Coach Wade has no more praise than that for the unbeaten Southern champions.

Twice before Wade has brought teams to play in the Rose bowl and the Far West has a wholehearted respect for Alabama as a result of the Crimson Tide's 20-19 victory over Washington in 1926 and a 7-7 tie with Stanford in 1927.

Wade Noncommittal
Asked to draw a comparison between his present eleven and the two previous ones he brought out here, Wade professed he didn't know which was the best.

"I don't know whether this is the greatest team I ever coached," he said, "and I never will know. Those other teams were in the past and there's really no basis of comparing them. I guess my present team has more reserve strength than either of the other teams I brought out here, but that's about the only comparison I can make."

Despite the fact that "Buck" Bailey, Washington State line coach, who saw the Alabama-Georgia game, and many others, report that the Crimson Tide has been playing under wraps and never been really extended, Wade said that his players were doing their best in every game.

"I expect Washington State has a better team than any team we have beaten," said Wade. "We are going to do our best to win and that's all I have to say about the game."

Goes to Duke Next Year
Wade's coaching career at Alabama will terminate after the New Year's day game, as he already has signed to coach Duke university, beginning next season. Wade has been at Alabama since 1923. He formerly was Dan McGugin's assistant at Vanderbilt, and played guard on Washington State in the first Tournament of Roses game in 1916.

Although Wade has few words of praise for his team, individually or collectively, "Tiny" Hewitt, former All-American halfback when he played with Pittsburgh and who later played with the Army, has a few bouquets for the Crimson Tide. Hewitt is one of Wade's assistants.

"Sington, the big tackle, and Campbell, quarterback, are two of the best players I have ever seen," said Hewitt. "Sington weighs 215 and is fast. He leads interference for the backs, opens up holes and is a demon on defense."

Campbell Fast, Shifty
"Campbell is fast, shifty and always dangerous. He reminds me some of Chris Cagle. He blocks and tackles well and is the best back in the South in my estimation."

One of the most striking things about the Alabama team is the similarity in build of most of the regulars. All of them are broad-shouldered and have stocky legs. For instance, Sington and Clement, the two tackles, have the same measurements—215 pounds, and six feet two inches in height.

One of the most striking things about the Alabama team is the similarity in build of most of the regulars. All of them are broad-shouldered and have stocky legs. For instance, Sington and Clement, the two tackles, have the same measurements—215 pounds, and six feet two inches in height.

Although Wade has few words of praise for his team, individually or collectively, "Tiny" Hewitt, former All-American halfback when he played with Pittsburgh and who later played with the Army, has a few bouquets for the Crimson Tide. Hewitt is one of Wade's assistants.

"Sington, the big tackle, and Campbell, quarterback, are two of the best players I have ever seen," said Hewitt. "Sington weighs 215 and is fast. He leads interference for the backs, opens up holes and is a demon on defense."

SPORTS Through Edgren's EYES

By Robert Edgren

"What's in it?"

That's the modern question about nearly all sports. Bobby Jones' retirement from amateur competition to reach out and grab a couple of hundred thousand or so for making golf moving pictures shows what was in sport for Jones.

Others have been less fortunate, but Bobby's is a special case. He began playing amateur golf in championship competition before he was long pants, but he didn't make much of it. He forgot everything else. He went through school, through college, through law school, always with high ranking as a student. He earned his way for a while by taking a job in a real estate office, and learned something about business.

Now Robert T. Jones is a well known lawyer in his home town, is chief counsel for a large corporation, has a practice of his own, is a bank director, and has shown ability to make his living without relying on any sport connection.

Movie Money Different
The moving picture money is different. Jones gets that purely through his golfing reputation. He would have been a fool to refuse the chance. He had won everything there was to win in golf and was weary of the constant rounds of competition. He intended to drop out of championship play anyway, to give all his time to business.

Golf cost Bobby a lot of money in the expenses he had to pay out of his own pocket. He didn't take advantage of any of the secret ways in which "amateurs" can recoup expense money and make a little on the side. Jones even refused flatly to become a professional golfer, although he could easily have made an income of over $100,000 a year.

A contrasting case is that of "Red" Grange, greatest of all Illinois football stars. Only a few years ago the name of Grange was spread through thousands of columns of newspaper space. He was the most brilliant and startling figure in football. Grange was developed in conditions that were quite different from those surrounding Bobby Jones. He and his family had no money. He had to work hard for a education.

Grange Still Playing
In his last year at Illinois Grange was approached by Promoter "Cash and Carry" Pyle, with a professional football scheme. It looked like a quick fortune and he had nothing else in prospect. Grange didn't wait to graduate. He hopped out and played pro football, and for a short time cleaned up. He made some money in moving pictures. But the football profits dwindled next year, and probably a good part of his earnings went back into "Cash and Carry's" sport promotions.

A few months ago Grange was "host" in a Hollywood night club. Now he's back playing professional football with some hundreds of other former college stars and finding it anything but the easy going of his amateur days.

Jim Thorpe, the famous Carlisle Indian school athlete, was perhaps the greatest football player in gridiron history, as well as the world's best all-around athlete. Jim slipped from his amateur standing by playing semi-pro baseball in vacation time, under another name, which the poor Indian thought was o. k., lots of college boys were doing it. That came out just after he had won the greatest all-around honors in the Olympic Games at Stockholm. His championships were cancelled, his trophies returned, and he was officially declared a professional.

Thorpe Failed in Baseball
John McGraw of the N. Y. Giants thought the world's greatest athlete might become a great ball player. He signed Jim and gave him every chance, but queerly enough Thorpe didn't fit in. He drifted out of baseball and played professional football for several years. Now Jim says that he finds the gridiron game growing tough. A fine athlete still—but driving power and speed dwindle with the years. Last time I saw Jim he said: "It's time for me to stop playing and go to work. If you hear of any kind of a job where what I know about sport would be useful please let me know."

Bill Tilden is still a great amateur tennis player. He won one of the world's most famous tennis features this past year, at Wimbledon, but later was put out of the American National championship tournament by young Johnny Doe, the winner. Still, a glance at the records shows how remarkably little Big Bill has slipped. He won his first National championship in 1920, when he was 27 years and 7 months old. He won his seventh National in 1929. This year he won five matches before being defeated by Doe. In 11 years of national championship play he won 67 matches and lost only 4. His Davis cup record, on 11 teams, was fully as good. There's no count of the outside tournaments he has won.

Just "what's in it" in amateur tennis for Big Bill is a question. He has had years of European travel, competing everywhere, has had a lot of fame and all that sort of thing, and undoubtedly has won enough cups and trophies to tin-roof a couple of bungalows. He has tried acting, fiction writing and writing articles about tennis for the papers, which pursuits probably have accounted for any spare time tennis left Big Bill. So far as I've heard they haven't put Tilden in the Bobby Jones class. Perhaps next year he can come back for a couple of big tennis titles and then hop into the movies, like Bobby, for some real money. It'll be about time.

Dempsey Made Plenty
Jack Dempsey never made anything out of fighting until after he knocked out Fred Fulton. He coped $12,500 for the Fulton fight, which was his real start. He got about double that for knocking out Jess Willard, but after that, as world's champion, Dempsey set a mark as a big-money fighter that probably never will be beaten. Dempsey never had any notion of making a living any other way than in the ring. He's still making ring money, drawing down the highest pay ever received by a referee—usually 50 per cent of the gate receipts. He has lost and given away a few barrels of cash, but he has a few left and isn't a candidate for anyone's sympathy. And Gene back into "Cash and Carry's" sport promotions.

Poundage Of Metzger 149 Says Phelan

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 24.—(UP)—Bert Metzger's weight has been settled once and for all.

The little Notre Dame guard, who is a member of the team of ex-stars which play here Saturday against a West-South aggregation, scaled exactly 149 1/2 in running trunks and Jersey yesterday in the presence of Jimmy "Hunk" Anderson, assistant Notre Dame coach, and others.

Many wagers have been made throughout the football season concerning Metzger's weight which was announced by Notre Dame at 155.

DONS EXTENDED TO WIN FROM HAWLEYS, 33-29

Santa Ana junior college owned its fourth successive basketball victory of the season today but the Dons were still shaking a little in their boots as a result of the battle they got from Hawley's independent aggregation in Andrews gymnasium last night.

The final score favored Coach Bill Foote's collegians, 33 to 29, but they had to put on full steam ahead in the second half to pull the trick out of the deck. The Sportsmen enjoyed a 20-15 lead at the intermission and hung on tenaciously even in the face of the Dons' improved offensive in the last two quarters.

Hal Dunham, substituting at forward, had much to do with Santa Ana's revival. He sunk five baskets in the second half, some long and some short, and in general demoralized the vigilant defense that the Hawleys had offered until his entry into the conflict.

Youel, Lund, Cox, Labrucherie, Beatty, Ochoa and Lutz played with the sportsmen and gave the Dons one of their toughest games of the year.

The Dons remain idle until next Tuesday when they meet Vic Baden's Concordians of Orange in Andrews gym.

The score:
Santa Ana (33) (29) Hawleys
Schuchardt (9) F..... (5) Youel
Walbridge (8) F..... (8) Lund
Seacord (5) C..... (4) Cox
Lindley (3) G..... (2) B. Beatty
Garlock (4) G..... (2) Lutz
Substitutions: Santa Ana—Dunham (11) for Walbridge; B. Beatty for Garlock; Hawleys—Labrucherie (6) for Cox; Ochoa for B. Beatty.

LINDSTROM TO PLAY OUTFIELD FOR NEW YORK

BY LES CONKLIN
(N. Y. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, is sailing for Cuba this week happy in the knowledge that he will be able to play ducks and drakes with the lineup of his ball team next spring.

McGraw, the Luther Burbank of baseball, is in his element when he has a chance to change a third baseman into a catcher or transpose his players like pawns in a chess game. His latest announced move is to convert Freddy Lindstrom into a center fielder, thus breaking up the "million dollar infield" which he rounded out by obtaining Hugh Critz from Cincinnati during the 1930 campaign to plug the hole at second base.

Vergez to Play Third
Johnny Vergez, purchased from the Oakland Pacific Coast league club, will be groomed to fill Lindstrom's shoes at third base.

If Vergez fails to pan out, McGraw will try out Pickering, a third sacker drafted from the Birmingham club of the Southern association, and in reserve there is Eddie Marshall, the graceful utility infielder who batted .309 last season.

While Lindstrom has an accurate throwing arm and is generally regarded as one of the best third basemen in the league, McGraw has declared that the Chicago -pru up and on dn you s; epaw ing bunts and that he is slow in starting for a ball, with a result that balls he should get are hit through him.

Lindstrom tried playing the outfield a few years ago and was not exactly a howling success, but now he has asked McGraw for another crack at the job. He worked on the picket line in practice frequently during the past season and looked like a ball hawk, starting quickly for a ball and covering more ground than a circus tent, due to his great speed.

Wants Punch in Outfield
The real reason for shifting Lindstrom to center field is that the doughty leader of the Giants has been unable to obtain another first class outfielder to bolster his picket line. If Freddy fills the bla he will add considerable punch to the garden trio and also will be bale to prolong his playing career for a couple more years. There is less wear and tear in chasing flies than in dodging rifle shots at the hot corner.

Melvin Ott, the boy benedict, will be in right field with Leach and Allen alternating in left.

Vergez hit .309 on the coast last season and McGraw has received glowing reports of him, although there is a suspicion that night baseball may have hurt the young man's batting eye.

NOT BAD AT ALL

CHRISTMAS TO BE BRIGHTENED FOR CHILDREN

Two hundred and twenty Santa Ana children, all with a gloomy outlook towards Christmas and with prospects of an empty stocking hanging on the mantel tonight, because their fathers are out of work or ill and destitute, will be among the bright-eyed smiling children of the city tomorrow morning, because of the thoughtfulness of the Santa Ana fire department.

Early today, equipped with one of the city's fire engines, the firemen were distributing hundreds and hundreds of toys and other gifts to the poor children of Santa Ana.

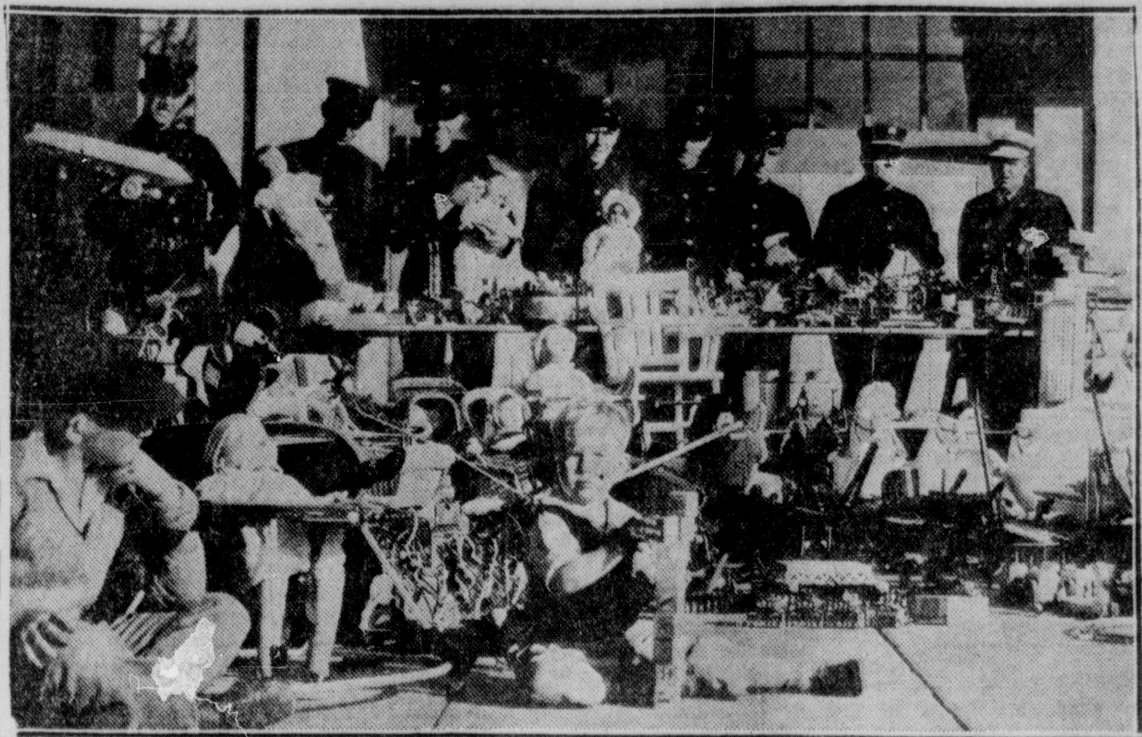

Their work today climaxes weeks of hard work during which time they have rebuilt hundreds of toys of all kinds. New paint, new parts and a general dressing up of dolls, beds, bicycles, automobiles, and scores of other toys has been a daily routine on the part of firemen for the past several weeks, since they first conceived the idea of giving the poor children a big Christmas.

The firemen themselves spent more than $150 of their own money, buying paints, oils, tools and other equipment for the work. They called for all old toys in the city, so they could make them over. The response was heavy. A general view of the toy room at the first station on Cypress street resembled Santa Claus' own workshop, and today when they started to make deliveries, scores of boxes were needed for the transportation to the big fire truck.

Names of the poor children were learned from the county aid commissioner and through various other sources. Where it was possible it was learned what the children in the various homes wanted and these were tagged and placed together. A good system was used by the firemen in delivering the presents and Budge Lacy, genial fireman, all dolled up like Santa Claus was in all sections of the city today delivering the presents in person. The public in general has no

FIREMEN BIG AID TO SANTA CLAUS

Here are just some of the old toys made over by members of the Santa Ana fire department, which will be distributed among the poorer families of Santa Ana today when firemen, equipped with one of the city's fire engines, will help Santa Claus by delivering the renovated toys to the doorsteps of scores of Santa Ana homes.

Idea of the vast amount of toys the firemen repaired and painted. Their work was so good that a number of the articles look like new and there was none that did not work properly like it should. When doll pianos were received with broken keys and legs, new keys and legs were replaced, and when a doll came in with only one arm, a new arm was put there in the place of the missing one. There are 220 children on the firemen's list who will receive not just one present, but several, all wrapped in a Christmas box from Santa Claus. These children represent 85 different families in Santa Ana, and the toys delivered if purchased new would cost more than $1800, it was said.

Aside from the toys, the firemen are delivering sacks of candy and nuts and fruit with every parcel. This was bought out of the firemen's fund.

Chief John Luxembourg, Budge Lacy and Everett Skaggs have been the leaders in the movement this year, one of the most praiseworthy movements seen in Santa Ana in recent years, but every fireman in all the Santa Ana stations have been hard at work every day for weeks and the credit goes to them. They have proved most efficient in their work, too, as the toys themselves show.

TO PAY OWNERS OF LAND TAKEN FOR ROAD USE

City Attorney Charles D. Swaner yesterday afternoon deposited with County Clerk J. M. Backs a check for $7,651.30, representing owners on Richland avenue as a the total amount due to property result of condemnation proceedings instituted by the city for the opening of that thoroughfare between Flower and Shelton streets. The proceedings cost the city $8953.31, of which total $7,651.30 went to compensate owners for property taken. The amount turned over by the city will be distributed in accordance with awards made by the court.

Inquiries revealed that plans for the paving of the street are now under consideration and probably will be submitted to the council at an early date.

GIRL RESERVES IN PARTY

SEAL BEACH, Dec. 24.—A delightful Christmas party for members of the Girl Reserves was held last night at the Community Methodist church, with 23 girls in attendance. Mrs. R. E. Phares, advisor, supervised the girls.

A number of enjoyable games were played during the evening, including Hunting Bells and Party Pranks, after which delicious refreshments were served.

The girls brought white gifts to the party which will be distributed to the needy on Christmas. Small gifts were exchanged by the girls at the party last night.

Legion Mother's Club Enjoys All-Day Meeting

Monday's all-day meeting of the Mother's club of the American Legion held in Legion hall was a true observance of Christmas and the holiday spirit. There were several special guests, and among these were past presidents and the present leader of the auxiliary, Mrs. Gertrude Collier. The group included Mesdames Nora McCalla, Rowena Fultz, Florence Robinson and Louise Tubbs.

Little Miss Barbara Ann Montgomery, granddaughter of Mrs. Alma Croft, was also the recipient of a special invitation to attend, and won much favor with the assembled club members. The congenial group regretted that three of the past presidents, Mesdames Gertrude Whitney, Julia Saunby and Myrtle Cain were unable to be present.

A delectable pot-luck luncheon was served at noon, with tables decked with tall candles in the Christmas colors, and tied with bows of tulle. Table mats were green. The afternoon was devoted to trying a mattress pad for Mrs. Amy Stewart, and to piecing quilts. A gift exchange was a pleasant feature of the afternoon, and many were the prettily wrapped packages in evidence.

Members present were Mesdames Margaret Hill, Alma Croft, Amy Stewart, Dora Lamb, Hattie Rose, Elma McKay, Della Anderson, Jennie Clem, Sarah Marvin, Fannie Reeves, Mary Crissman, Hattie Stowe and Lydia Robinson.

The next meeting will be held the fourth Monday next month, January 25.

Swales-Jones Nuptials To Be Quiet Event In Bride's Home

Although all details of the wedding on Friday night, December 26, of Miss Emeline Swales, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard G. Swales, 2366 Riverside drive, and Robert A. Jones of Los Angeles, will be carried out with extreme simplicity because of a recent bereavement in the bride's family much interest attaches to the event, for despite its quietness, it will be one of the important weddings of the winter season.

Only immediate members of the two families and two or three of the young bride's closest friends, will be present for the ceremony, which will take place at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the Swales home. Mr. Swales will give his daughter in marriage.

Mr. Jones has a brother-in-law and sister living in Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stratton, who will be present to represent his family as his parents are not living. Miss Swales is the youngest daughter of the home and is a popular member of the younger social set.

Informal Bridge Club Shares Enjoyable Yule Party

Ever since the organization a few years ago of a small two-table bridge club by a group of close friends, it has been the accepted custom to hold a Christmas meeting with Mrs. Burr Shaffer in her hospitable home on South Broadway, so Monday night Mrs. Shaffer greeted her guests at the 1930 version of the Christmas party.

Little Miss Roberta Shaffer, in a pretty pink taffeta frock, and Master Burr Shaffer Jr., aided their mother in welcoming her friends, and in distributing the clever Tuletide tally cards, placing composites of candy on the tables, and other minor but essential details of hospitality.

Mrs. Sidney Lowrey scored high in the bridge contest, receiving a set of bridge score pads and tally cards in modernistic design, while a deck of moderne playing cards was awarded Mrs. Charles W. Hyde, scoring second high.

At midnight the hostess served a delicious little supper at tables arranged with black glass and centered with tall red tapers which twinkled merrily at their counter-parts placed about the spacious room and on the red and silver Christmas trees.

Mr. Shaffer joined the party in time to substitute for Santa Claus in distributing the beautifully wrapped gifts placed at the base of the tree in the club's annual gift exchange.

Sharing the happy evening were Mrs. Shaffer, Mrs. Robert Jeffrey, Mrs. Henry Williams, Miss Elizabeth Phillips, Mrs. Arnold Lund, Mrs. Charles W. Hyde Jr., Mrs. Sidney Lowrey and Mrs. Emmett Elliott.

Guests Make Candy at Las Meninas Club Meeting

The hospitable ranch home of Miss Neva McDonald, at Irvine, last night afforded a pleasant setting for the regular meeting of Las Meninas, girl's service club of Santa Ana junior college, when members met to conclude their Christmas relief work. The earlier part of the evening was devoted to highly interesting fortune telling by Miss June Arnold, who is an adept with the cards.

Following this, a taffy pull took place, and the candy was packed for the needy. Plans were completed to furnish a needy family with Christmas presents, at which a Santa Claus and "all the trimmings" will be present.

At the close of the evening, delectable refreshments were served by the hostess, Miss Neva McDonald, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Staples and by her sister, Miss Mildred Staples, and cousin, Miss Lillian McDonald, who were charter members of the club.

Those present were the advisor, Miss Genevieve Humiston, and the Misses Ruth Fitz of Garden Grove, Esther Romoff of Anaheim, Ruth Collins of Laguna Beach, Catherine Harwood, June Arnold, Lillian McDonald, of Santa Ana, Lorna Allen, Marian Taylor, and Miriam Samuelson, of Tustin, Miss Olga McDonald, Miss Mildred Staples, and the hostess, Miss Neva McDonald, all of Irvine.

I. O. O. F. and Rebekah Lodges Join For Celebration

Ushering Christmas week into the city, Rebekahs and Odd Fellows held a lovely party last evening, and hundreds of guests were attracted by the extensive and attractive plays made by the committees in charge. The holiday spirit was evidenced throughout the evening, and was first expressed in the community singing of "Joy to the World" with Mrs. Grace Gross at the piano.

There was no end of variety to the program of the evening, and perhaps one of the most enjoyable features was the group of dances which students of Miss Evelyn Vee Gaylord offered. Tap and clog dances were given as solos and in chorus numbers as well. Most of those participating are from Fullerton, and include the Misses Virginia De Sota, Dullurta Stull, Dorothea Pickens, Elvira Class, Pauline Class, Donna Fanner and Louise Halesworth.

Miss La Verne Stovall gave a reading, as did Miss Betty Ellen Mitchell. Numbers were given by a vocal trio composed of Clinton Campbell, Bill Lee and Bill Fair. Harold Brown gave a clever Dutch reading in costume, and Nye Martin followed with a song. The little Misses Jean Zabel and Betty Blossom Goble gave readings and Mary Campbell gave a clog dance. The Lathrop girls' quartet, accompanied at the piano by Miss Corinne Peck, sang some delightful numbers.

Very effective was the Christmas tableau given by a group of girls, with Mrs. Gross at the piano. Those taking part were the Misses Frances McWalters, Bonnie Kyrte, Mary Jones Gross, Nellie Billaud, Dorothy Barnard and Gertrude Gross.

The enjoyable evening was concluded when Santa Claus made his appearance, and invited everyone to gather near the Christmas tree, with children first in line. There were candies and fruits for all, and St. Nicholas assured everyone the merriest of Yuletides.

Christmas Bridge Tea Enjoyed By Group Of Friends

That indefinable charm and excitement which pervades the Christmas atmosphere, seemed especially marked yesterday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Edmund West, 323 South Garnsey street, where a little group of friends assembled in response to Mrs. West's invitation for a Christmas bridge tea.

An unusually beautiful silver fir tree dominated the Christmas scene, which was enhanced with great velvet poinsettias and slim scarlet tapers, while a "shy, sweet note of spring," seemed to sound from a low green bowl of Cherokee roses which was admired very much.

In the lively session of bridge, Mrs. Russell Wilson (Ninette Rowland) scored high and was rewarded with two decks of modernistic playing cards, while second high score, made by Miss Evelyn Metzgar, secured for her a pretty set of bridge score pads and tallies. The gifts were among the appointments of the graceful Christmas tree.

At the tea hour, Mrs. West asked her guests to find places at the table in the dining room where the rich hues of poinsettias and candles blended perfectly with her ruby-tinted crystal and creamy china. Places were indicated for the hostess, and for the Misses Constance Cruickshank, Evelyn Metzgar, Betty Maloney, Boyd Joplin, Margaret Paterson, Eleanor Metzgar and Mrs. Russell Wilson.

Santa Makes Early Visit In Los Angeles

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Williams of Los Angeles, will be interested in learning that Santa Claus has assumed stork duties and presented them with a young son. He was born Monday night in an Angel city hospital, and is as yet unchristened.

Mrs. Williams was formerly Miss Lorena Bird of this city. Both mother and son are reported as getting along nicely.

Christmas Bride-to-Be Has Joyous Surprise From Her Friends

Seldom has a prospective bride been more completely and successfully surprised at a pre-nuptial courtesy, than was Miss Jewel Fletcher, who yesterday was complimented at a cleverly arranged shower in honor of her Christmas wedding tomorrow to Clarence R. Jackson. Mrs. L. W. Hypes was hostess at the affair, and details were carried out with such care, that Mrs. C. O. Fletcher, mother of the charming honoree, found it very difficult indeed, to assure her busy young daughter's attendance.

However, Mrs. Fletcher and her sister, Miss Edith Cornell, brought up the subject of the church decorations for tomorrow's ceremony, and persuaded Miss Fletcher that she really should call at the home of Mrs. Hypes, to discuss some of the details of this important feature, which the latter has in charge. The Hypes home at 937 West Camille street, was ablaze with Christmas appointments, amidst which the guests were quietly awaiting the arrival of their honoree. As she opened the door, Mrs. W. B. Merigold swung into the stirring strains of "Lohengrin's Wedding March," and the guests began calling their greetings.

After the excitement of her welcome, Miss Fletcher had the additional pleasure of examining the collection of gifts heaped at the base of an attractive tree. The gifts were all to be used in a green kitchen, and combined beauty and utility with an occasional delightful touch of humor. An added charm was the artistic corsage presented her by her hostess.

To complete the joyous occasion, Mrs. Hypes had arranged for a refreshment interval, during which Mrs. Fletcher presided at the punch bowl, and the dainties were served buffet style.

Everyone present enjoyed the reminiscences of Miss Fletcher's childhood and little girl days, offered by two of the guests, Mrs. Harvey Fitten and Mrs. Mary Jeffrey, who had known her from babyhood. Others present to share the afternoon with hostess and honoree, included Mrs. Fletcher, Miss Cornell, Mrs. Charles Walker, Mrs. J. H. Daniger, Mrs. F. H. Cloyes, Mrs. Mason Yould, Mrs. C. F. Hoffman, Mrs. J. D. Kelley, Mrs. W. E. Merigold, Mrs. Louise Henshaw, Miss Mary Woodward and Miss Nell Isaacson.

Mrs. Reif Entertains Klean Kut Members At Luncheon

A charming luncheon of recent date was that given for Klean Kut club members, with Mrs. Eugene Reif as hostess in her home at 1022 West Fourth street. Bouquets of poinsettias provided a pleasant setting for the affair, and tables were prettily decorated with red nut cups.

In the bridge games of the afternoon, Mrs. E. T. Read and Mrs. George J. Cocking scored first and second high while Mrs. J. L. McBride was consoled.

Special guests of the day were Mrs. Harold Finley and Mrs. H. J. McCormack. Members sharing Mrs. Reif's hospitality were Mesdames E. T. Read, J. L. McBride, A. W. Sanford, Jesse Wright, R. A. Couch, J. F. Jacoby, Lee Boyle, George Cocking and O. F. Turner.

Parton-Ites Meet In Eubanks Home

Members of the Parton-Ites club held an interesting meeting recently when Mr. and Mrs. Leland Eubank were hosts. Bridge was the game of the evening, and when scores were added it was found that Mrs. J. W. Branson and Charles Cramer held high and Mrs. Mack Struck and Hugh Neighbour, low. Delectable refreshments were served to conclude the pleasant meeting.

Those present, other than Mr. and Mrs. Eubank, were Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Neighbour, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Branson, Mr. and Mrs. Mack Struck, Mr. and Mrs. George Barton and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cramer.

New Home Provides Pretty Setting For Party

One of the happiest celebrations of the Christmas season was that shared by city letter carriers and their families when the spacious new home of the James Valentines on South Birch street, was opened in friendly hospitality.

Colorful decorations and a sparkling Christmas tree emphasized the spirit of the occasion, and the tree bore magic fruit in the shape of a gift for each person present. After the evening of gaiety and good cheer, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine served cake, ice cream and coffee.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles White, Laureline White; Mr. and Mrs. Frank McKay, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Elliott and little son Junior; Mr. and Mrs. William E. Wilde, Edith, Robert and James Wilde, Houston B. Thomas and daughter Donna; Mr. and Mrs. Seth Bullock and Seth Jr., Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Cook and Giles and Allan Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Marr, Robert and Victoria Marr, Mrs. L. F. Harvey, Lester Harvey, Mrs. Mabel Leach, Mrs. Martha Sutcliffe, and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine and their children, James Junior and Dorothy Jean Valentine.

Hard, Large Pimples on Face and Neck. Healed by Cuticura.

"The trouble began with pimples breaking out on my face and neck. The pimples were hard, large and red and caused disfigurement. They itched and burned and when I scratched them it only made them worse. The trouble lasted about two or three years.
"I tried other remedies without success. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they afforded relief in about two weeks, and in two months I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Florence Zigelhofer, Cowdrey, Colo., April 5, 1930.

Xmas Party Slated At Fox West Coast Tonight

PRESENTS WILL BE GIVEN AWAY AT NIGHT SHOW

Santa Claus is coming to the Fox West Coast theater tonight to see the grownups. He already has visited the children at this theater, but tonight's performance will be for the mothers and fathers.

Christmas presents are to be handed out to the audience from the stage when a number of desirable gifts are to be delivered, including a putting machine which has been on display in the lobby for the past several days, an evening dress, which will go to some woman in the audience, shirts, ties, socks and other men's apparel which will be handed out to dad and brother.

"This is our regular Christmas Eve party, one that we hope to build up from year to year," Norman Sprowl, Fox theater manager, said today. "It is going to be a big party and there will be much entertainment besides the distribution of gifts," Sprowl said.

A gingham dog, which also has been on display at the theater for the past several days, is another of the Christmas presents to be given away.

Charles Farrell plays one of the best roles of his career in "The Princess and the Plumber" which will be shown for the last time today at the Fox West Coast theater. The picture opened here yesterday.

With Maureen O'Sullivan, pretty Irish girl, who was seen here recently in the feminine lead in "Just Imagine," the picture is a light romantic comedy that puts Farrell in exactly the kind of role he is best suited and one in which he will be liked by all who see the film.

The plot concerns the son of a rich man, working his way up from the bottom. The picture opens in Europe where Charles is seen as a plumber at a big castle, owned by a prince. The prince rents the castle to a lord who falls in love with his landlord's daughter. She has eyes only for the plumber however, and the complications that arise and the manner in which they are worked out make for good entertainment throughout.

Farrell's work in "The Princess and the Plumber" is outstanding and will place him in the high esteem of the theatergoing public as did "Seventh Heaven."

Small Oranges Plentiful

This paragraph is not intended as "ballyhoo" for the citrus growers association, but to bring to the attention of every interested woman the news that small juice oranges are going to be plentiful and cheap this season, and to tell just why it is health insurance to use them every day this winter.

First, let's take the question of children's teeth: Oranges contain quantities of the growth vitamin, C, as well as great quantities of lime in the state it was intended man should get this bone builder. The next thing of importance is the sodium content in oranges... this element grows healthy nerves, and health is impossible without them.

For the adult, especially those who are in "white collar" jobs, the C vitamin helps those who are victims of constipation (this vitamin induces lax intestinal muscles to get up and get busy). The alkaline content protects from acidosis, a trouble which afflicts a lot of people in slight form, and which they attribute to "being off their feed." And what holds good for children's nerves, goes for the adult's.

Don't think that the morning orange juice or sliced oranges is the only way you can serve this fruit... A favorite dessert in my house is a fruit cup, or fruit cocktail, in which oranges, pineapple and a few slices of banana are combined with a little orange juice and sugar and topped with a spoonful of whipped cream.

For a dinner salad use sliced oranges arranged in lettuce cups, with good mayonnaise, serve sliced oranges with boiled custard and a slice of sponge cake for dessert... mould diced orange in jellied salads, or in sweet jelly for desserts... make sauces for meats and puddings with the juice.

The uses are legion, and the benefits incalculable.

TODAY'S RECIPE
Delicious Raisin Bread
3 cups sweet milk

MARIE DRESSLER - HERSELF

Clothes and otherwise of Marie Dressler, famous comedian, who with Polly Moran is seen in their latest laugh success "Reducing," which opens at the Fox Broadway theater Christmas Day. The picture is a sequel to "Caught Short," in which they were seen here recently and is said to be funnier, if such a thing is possible.

2 yeast cakes dissolved in 1 cup tepid water
1 rounded tablespoon salt
5 cups sifted bread flour
2 cups brown sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1/4 cup melted butter
1/2 cup melted lard
1/2 tablespoons each, of mace and cinnamon
1 cup seeded raisins
1/2 cup currants
10 cents worth sliced citron
3 or more cups sifted flour

Scald the milk and cool to blood warmth (tepid). Add the salt and dissolved yeast cakes, and gradually beat in the five cups of sifted flour to make a thick sponge. Cover and let rise until it is as light as a feather. This takes about 1 1/2 hours.

Add the spices to the extra flour and sift. Melt the two fats, beat the eggs, combine these two with the sugar and beat well before whipping into the fluffy sponge, then mix in the spiced flour more if needed to make a dough which can be kneaded.

Of course the floured fruit, citron and nut meats are put in before the dough is mixed completely.

Turn onto the board and knead lightly for five minutes, put back in oiled pan to rise; when light, cut down with a knife, divide in three parts, form into loaves, put in buttered pans, brush with melted butter, let rise again, and bake in moderate oven about one hour.

A large tube cake pan is ideal for baking two-thirds of the dough, the balance can be baked as a small loaf. This bread toasted, or used as sandwiches, can't be beaten for goodness. Try it and see.

A slice of this raisin bread has a calory value of about 160 energy-making calories.

Hot Oil Shampoo is the subject discussed in the current leaflet. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a free copy of this valuable leaflet on the care of the hair and scalp at home.

Poached Sole and Sauce will be discussed tomorrow. This is a delightful change from the everlasting "fillet of sole and tartar sauce."

NEW SHOWS AT FOX THEATERS ON XMAS DAY

The Fox theaters of Santa Ana will present new shows in both the Fox West coast and the Fox Broadway theaters on Christmas day.

The Fox Broadway theater, starting tomorrow will be seen Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, in their latest all-talking, all laughing production, "Reducing." At the Fox West Coast theater will be seen Evelyn Brent in a Christmas story, "Madonna of the Streets."

Those who saw Polly Moran and Marie Dressler in "Caught Short," their great comedy which came, as a result of the stock market crash several months ago will remember them as the greatest feminine comedy team yet brought to picture. "Reducing" is a follow up of "Caught Short." When the market crashed and Polly and Marie went broke they closed one of their boarding houses and became partners.

They are partners still in "Reducing," except in this film they have opened a pa beauty parlor and reducing baths and are in business to make back their lost money. The picture is a scream from start to finish. It is the type of picture that will lighten away any blues and leaves every audience tired from laughing.

An intriguing story is "Madonna of the Streets" at the Fox West Coast, starting tomorrow. The story is novel, not one of those hackneyed plots. May Fisher has been companion to Howard Crane for years but has refused to marry him. Crane intends to bestow his wealth on her, which by an earlier will he has left to his nephew Peter Minton. Before he can change the document, he is killed in an accident. Knowing the money was intended for her, May Fisher determines to get the money from the man to whom it was unintentionally bequeathed. She finds Peter Minton, a youthful philanthropist, running the "Star of Hope Mission" on the Barbary Coast. To better attain her ends, May accepts the position of assistant to him at the Mission. When love enters into the game—things begin to happen—very different from the course of events anticipated by the originally designing May Collins.

Evelyn Brent gives a dynamic and forceful performance as May. She is effective at all times. In addition to enhancing the role with her vivid appearance, she injects it with convincing realism. Equally effective in the role of Peter Minton is Robert Ames, who recently made such a success in "The Trespasser" and "Holiday." Other interesting portrayals are rendered by Ivan Linow, Josephine Dunn and Ed Brady.

"WAY OUT WEST" AT WALKER STATE TODAY

Opening at Walker's State today is William Haines in his all-talking comedy, "Way Out West." Haines is his same inimitable self in a picture that is made for laughing purposes only. The star is surrounded by a cast of well known names, including Lella Hyams, Cliff Edwards, Polly

AT WEST COAST

Moran and Francis X. Bushman Jr.

The picture will continue through Christmas Day, when it will be shown continuously, beginning at 1 p. m.

The airplane strength of the Royal Air Force of England is 780 planes. France's fighting planes number 1310, Italy's, 1100, and America's 950.

"TOL'ABLE DAVID" ENDS BROADWAY RUN

"Tol'able David," Joseph Hergesheimer's greatest story which was brought to the talking screen by Columbia Pictures, is now showing at the Fox Broadway theater where it closes today.

The story is concerned with mountaineers' feuds, back hill hats and the beautiful romance of two unsophisticated youngsters still in their teens. It is a favorite with the public and extraordinary care was taken to choose just the right people to interpret the roles. For the title role, Richard Cromwell, an unknown boy, was chosen over one hundred and seventy-two contestants. Those who have seen his performance in this role predict that he has a brilliant future in store for him. His performance is declared sensational. The feminine lead opposite him is handled by the charming young star, Joan Peers, the youthful player who scored a personal success in her film debut opposite Helen Morgan in "Applause."

Others in the cast, which should be called an all-star aggregation are Henry B. Walthall, one of screen's greatest character actors, Helen Ware, Edmund Breese, and other ace character delineator, and George Duryea, John G. Blystone directed.

Says Ed Howe, philosopher and journalist, "I often remark the gentleness of telephone girls... If women generally would be as gentle with husbands as with the public, marriages everywhere would average much better."

Also Talking Comedy and Cartoon.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

The native chief of Tessawa, looked on the Tinymites with awe. Said he, "You sure are little folks! And yet you travel far. From day to day, I have no doubt, each one of you gets all tired out. And yet you keep on going. My, oh my, how brave you are."

"While you are in our town I'm glad to have you look around. Too bad that I cannot go with you, but I'm busy as can be. However, I will have a guide take you all for a dandy ride. He has a little cart and lots of wondrous sights you'll see."

The cart was soon brought into sight and, how it pleased each Tinymite! They hopped aboard and off they went. The Travel Man said, "I will stay behind and rest a bit so I can get to feeling fit. I trust that you will wake me when you come back, bye and bye."

They rode around and had much fun. Then, with the sinking of the sun they woke the friendly Travel Man and he said, "Well, let's go! We'll reach another town tonight if everything turns out all right." The truck then started on its way and traveled safe and slow.

The town of Zinder next was reached. And as they pulled in someone screamed, "What's that?" exclaimed wee Clowny. "Gee, it took my breath away." The Travel Man replied, "Don't fret. A funny view you'll shortly get. Oh, look! The sun is coming up to bring the break of day."

And then they saw the funny sight! Some natives, painted black and white, were putting on a real strange dance. The Tinies ran up near! "That's right," exclaimed the Travel Man. "Get just as close, now, as you can. They're glad to have you watch them and there's not a thing to fear."

(The Tinymites get a Christmas surprise in the next story.)

Missing Letter Links

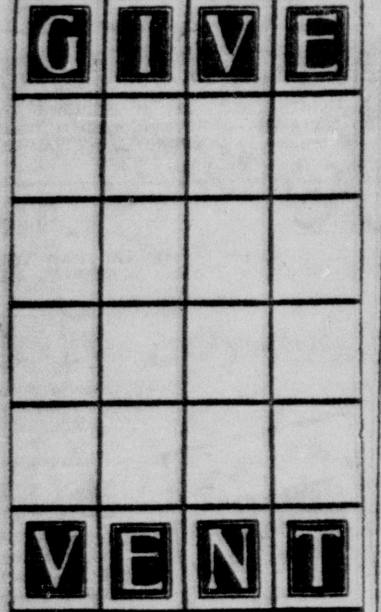

RULES

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TIN to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't: TEE-TIE-PIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.

3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

CHRISTMAS AGAIN

The Christmas story is an old story. It is the most wonderful story because it bears re-telling and re-enacting over and over again. It seems this year that the spirit of Christmas has gone farther than ever before. There is a universal desire on the part of everyone to make this Christmas the happiest day of all the year for every man, woman and child. In every city of the country men who have been attending strictly to business for their own account are throwing themselves wholeheartedly and unselfishly into some work that is going to alleviate to some extent the contrasts of wealth and poverty of Christmas, 1930.

When we come to think of it, how wonderful it is that we have the Christmas festival. As it softened the heart of old Scrooge in Dickens' Christmas Carol, it is softening the hearts of millions who have little care for others on any of the other days of the year. The Christmas story continues with an everlasting newness. Every year it comes, but never it passed by without the welling up of the most stupendous flood of good will. If its spirit could be carried throughout the year, the redemption of the world would be achieved. There would be no more hungry, no more of God's children cold and desolate. Sickness would ever feel the healing or the assuaging touch. Hatreds would disappear. Strifes would cease. The whole world would live in friendship. In the darkest and most cruel days of the war, enemies across the lines fraternized. Amid the strifes of our civic life, Christmas comes with a spirit of reconciliation.

Then we think of the multitudes who are united at the hearthstones on Christmas day. There are the thousands of students returning home for the Christmas holidays. Home will look good to them now that they have been away from it for a time. And how the elders rejoice to hear the young voices in singing and laughter once more. Families are united on that day. Old and young and little children,—it is a day of joy for them all. Christianity has brought to the world many things that bless and lift mankind, but it has brought us nothing so sweet and sacred and joyful as Christmas day. Its carols gladden the whole earth. Mankind is more in tune on that day than any other. Let us be thankful for Christmas day.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

News dispatches this morning connect President Hoover's name with Robert H. Lucas, executive chairman of the Republican National committee in his fight against Senator Norris, of Nebraska. While a Washington correspondent for a Los Angeles newspaper declares most emphatically that President Hoover is in harmony with Mr. Lucas in this attack, we cannot believe that these are the facts, though the repeated statements of the officials of the party organization without any rebukes from the White House, would go far to sustain the idea that Mr. Hoover is opposed to the elements in the Senate represented by Senator Norris.

Our faith in Mr. Hoover would be much shaken, if not entirely destroyed, if the developments of the situation would show that Mr. Hoover is lining up with those elements in our public life whom Senator Norris of Nebraska, Borah of Idaho, Brookhart of Iowa, and other men like them have been fighting in the Senate for many years. These men have been fighting for the protection of our public resources when private enterprises, approaching monopolies, have been endeavoring to get possession of them.

These men have been fought by selfish and special interests in the Senate, in their home states, everywhere, and all the time, without lull. The enterprise of the Boulder Dam was fought by these same elements from the Atlantic to the Pacific, including right here in California, and were it not for the sustained and constant support furnished Senator Johnson by this group, typified by Senator Norris, this great boon which is coming to California and other Southwestern states would never have been passed. It was the Senate that exposed the terrible misuse of money by the big power interests in the subsidizing of newspapers, college professors, heads of women's clubs, and even ministers, in order to create public opinion against enterprises which were for the public good, which might run counter to the purposes of the power interests. The fight in the Senate on these various enterprises, and many akin to them, has been between those who have represented the common people on the one side, and these special interests on the other.

There has never been any question on any of these matters as to where Senator Norris stood. When it came to the matter of a vast amount of money being used for the election of men in the United States Senate, Senator Norris has always taken his position openly and frankly against such use of money. We cannot believe that Mr. Hoover is going to line up in this manner, because we have never believed that he belonged to that group that these men have had to fight. If he does take this position, of course it will demonstrate that he belongs there, and if he belongs there and his sympathy and services are in that direction, millions of people will believe Senator Norris was amply justified in opposing Mr. Hoover for the presidency. We were sorry to see him take this position at that time, but we never had any doubt but what he was actuated by the highest patriotic motives.

Sinclair Lewis, a few days ago made the declaration that America was not a nation, but a continent, and said you should not expect men to get the same slant on things in New York City as in San Francisco any more than you could expect them to get the same slant on matters in London as they did in Jerusalem. Of course, big eternal principles might receive the same view but certainly on questions of tariff, the farmers' interests and the economic good of various groups, you cannot expect people to take the same views in the iron and steel districts that need a high degree of protection, that they would take out in the vast prairies or on the farms where their interest is to get machinery at the lowest possible cost.

The orange growers of California cannot be expected to see eye-to-eye with the lumber interests of the North. "Republicanism" or "Democracy," as far as the people are concerned, unfortunately represent different things in different places. For Andrew Mellon and Senator Borah to both be considered Republicans does seem ridiculous, but they each are so considered by the people of their own states, and no one gives the right to the one to charge the other with not being a Republican. This incongruity was bound finally to manifest itself. It is coming out, maybe in a natural way, but we hope that Mr. Hoover will be big enough to see that no one man, much less special interests with their hirelings, can read honest, sincere men out of the Republican ranks, and expect it to still command the respect and support of the masses of the people.

CHRISTMAS TODAY AND YESTERDAY

Those not familiar with early American history may not know that the present emphasis upon the observance of the Christmas festival is of comparatively recent origin. The Santa Claus myth has been grafted upon the Christmas observance. In earlier history Santa Claus day was a festival apart, and had no relation to Christmas whatever. The early settlers of the United States frowned upon Easter and Christmas observance as "relics of Popery." When the observance of the Christmas festival was first introduced, there were many among the early inhabitants who felt that it was a return to the forms and rituals from which they had escaped in England. The great festivals on the early American calendar, outside of the Cavalier settlement in Virginia, were New Year's Fast Day in the Spring, and Thanksgiving Day in the fall. Easter and Christmas had no recognition.

All of which indicates the changes which have come over our national life. A protest movement, such as that which led to the early migrations to America, always goes to an opposite extreme, and then gradually moves back to a more moderate position. The Yule Tide joyousness of old England found little place in early New England, and to that much of the somberness of that period is due. One returning from those early days to witness the jollity of this Christmas period, the universal religious observance of the day, and the all but universal exchange of gifts and greetings, might be very much shocked, or even imagine himself in the land from which he fled. The commercialization of Christmas might pain him sorely.

This attitude has been forgotten by all save the students of history today. The real background of the Christmas story has come to its own again. Those who believe that the greatest gift ever given to mankind lies embedded in the Christmas observance have reason to rejoice and be glad at this season. For with that great gift came hope, assurance, and the joyous spirit of gratitude and thanksgiving. It is well for all to recall that what the father rejected has become the great era of joy for us. And yet we should never forget that their protest was serious, and came from hearts which were wrong by the wrongs which they suffered and the sin against which they hurled their protest.

Christmas Greeting

Merry Christmas, Christmas cheer
Memories of our Savior dear,
Who left His throne came down to earth
Sought for himself an humble birth.

Here to submit God's loving plan
To cancel all the sins of man,
For by temptation, greed and hate
Man lost the title of his estate.

For as through Adam all must die
In Christ redemption hovereth nigh,

So now He is waiting to reclaim
Our lost estate in His own name,
A building near the Father's throne
Of which Christ is the corner stone.

Merry Christmas, Christmas cheer
Memories of the Savior dear.

After 1,930 Years

Fresno Morning Republican
Some nineteen hundred and thirty years ago there was born in Bethlehem, of Judea, Jesus of Nazareth, called the Christ. It is that event we are observing today.

No person, before or since that time, has ever affected the lives of so many human beings as has this Jesus.

No person has ever come nearer expressing, in His actions, His thoughts and His relations to His fellow men, the things we all admire in those about us.

No person has brought men as close to their Maker, nearer to the great universe of which we are apart, than this Man of Galilee.

More Truth Than Poetry

ASPIRATION

I do not want to drive about
A costly motor car—
A bus which would, beyond a doubt,
Of super-equine power
Convey me fast and far;
I do not crave a speed machine
To dash across a rural scene
At ninety miles an hour.
But frequently I wish that I
Might have a bit of luck
And gain the wherewithal to buy
A ten-ton truck.

And then, when I drove into town
From my remote abode,
No reckless lads would run me down
Or thrust me off the road.
I'd move at my own chosen gait
Conserving oil and gas
And other cars would have to wait
Until I let them pass.
And even haughty gentlemen,
To place and power born,
Would make way nimbly for me when
They heard my horn.

These vehicles have given me
Bad moments in my day,
They always make themselves a free
Untrammelled right of way.
Along the highway or the lane
The swaying, lumbering things
Insist upon the same domain
Of robed and sceptered kings,
While other cars must dutifully strive
To slide, dodge or duck,
And that is why I'd like to drive
A ten-ton truck.

CHEERING THOUGHT

Crime conditions cannot be as bad as most of the plays that portray them.

Scientists inform us that the sap of plants is the natural food of mosquitoes. Perhaps some day the mosquitoes will find that out.

"His Own Heart Laughed"

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

It was a hundred years ago, on Christmas Eve, as everybody knows, that dismal old Scrooge sat in the dismal chamber of his deceased partner, Jacob Marley.

Scrooge! a wheezing, wrenching, grasping, scraping, clutching, covetous, old sinner!

That very night came a visit from Marley's ghost, followed by visits from the ghost of Christmas Past, the ghost of Christmas Present, and the ghost of Christmas Yet to Come.

Whereof, on Christmas morning Old Scrooge awoke, a transformed man.

"Heaven and the Christmas time be praised for this!" he cried. "I say it on my knees, old Jacob; on my knees. I am as light as a feather, as happy as an angel. A merry Christmas to everybody! Hallo there! Whoop! Hallo!"

Before he was dressed, he dispatched to poor Bob Cratchit, his struggling clerk, the biggest turkey that could be found. It was bigger than Tiny Tim, himself.

Then he walked through the frosty streets on Christmas morning, while the Christmas bells were ringing. Everywhere he went, he found men and women happy—happy because they were making others happy.

"Ghost of Jacob Marley!" exclaimed Scrooge, "I will make Bob Cratchit the merriest man alive."

Scrooge was better than his word; and to Tiny Tim, who did not die, he was a second father.

Some people laughed to see the alteration in him; but he little heeded them, for he was wise enough to know that nothing ever happened on this globe, for good, at which some people did not have their fill of laughter at the outset. His own heart laughed, and that was enough for him.

One hundred years have passed since then, and Christmas Eve is here again.

And still no man has ever found a surer way than Scrooge found to make his own heart laugh.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

MANKIND'S FESTIVAL OF HOPE

In the midst of the holly and hilarity of the Christmas season the shy spirit of hope waits to hearten mankind.

The Christians cannot monopolize Christmas this year.

For the contemporary world, harassed by dilemmas and difficulties innumerable, it has a secular significance quite apart from the special religious implications it carries.

If I were a Jew or Buddhist or Mohammedan or Atheist, I should still be reminded today that the Prophet out of Nazareth leaned down to a world that was distressingly amateur in the management of its affairs and spoke into its ears words of wisdom and hope.

Words that emphasized the fullness of the spiritual over the material!

Words that emphasized the central significance of the individual!

Words that emphasized the cruelty of force as a solvent of social issues!

Words that emphasized the crucial importance of justice in the social order!

Words that emphasized the durable satisfactions that come from dedicating our energies to causes wider than our personal concerns!

Words that emphasized the achievement of life abundant as the only vivid objective of the political, economic, educational, and religious enterprises of mankind!

For a time, while we were busy in the far country of materialism, laying the foundations and elaborating the instruments of our machine economy, we were inclined to list this Prophet out of Nazareth among the impractical dreamers of the ages.

But the world of 1930 is beginning to suspect that even escape from the economic impasse into which its false notions of practicality have led it lies in the adoption rather than the adornment of the program of this prophet who, were he among us now, would be pleading with us to seek first the lifting of the standard of life for the masses in brave confidence that all else would be added—sustenance and stability for our civilization.

As, day after day, I have written of high wages, short hours, low prices, and a general lifting of the standard of living, with the freedom these will give or the cultivation of values that lie beyond daybooks and ledgers; as I have urged this program as a cure for the current economic depression, I have been but translating into terms of a special modern situation this Prophet's plea for the abundant life for the millions.

"We have always had a curious feeling," said Bernard Shaw, "that though we crucified Christ on a stick, he somehow managed to get hold of the right end of it, and that if we were better men we might try His plan."

Particularly, now, Christmas comes as mankind's festival of hope.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

A SOUND MIND

Health is the foundation of all happiness. Upon it depends the mental attitudes of the human being who is striving to keep his place in this world. Those mental attitudes reflect themselves in the conduct, in every action. Every action modifies the thought and therefore the self. It is not possible to separate thought from action, mind from body. The health of each is dependent upon the other, is equally important.

We are learning to guard the physical health of the children a little better than we used to do. Public nursing, clinics, mothers' clubs, earnest physicians, enlightened boards of education, boards of health, all contribute to the education of the mothers and fathers so that our children are being well cared for physically. But the mental side of the child is not so well guarded. People do not know so much about that and a great deal of what they have heard is not as dependable as it might be. The new phrases—complexes, conditioned emotions, and the like belong to the experts, not to everybody who chooses to be modern. No child should be psycho-analyzed unless a highly qualified and responsible person attached to some approved hospital, orders it.

The best way to keep our children mentally fit is to allow them to live simple, peaceful, happy lives. Easier said than done, but it can be done, if we mean it shall be done. We can, far more of us than do, rear our children in the suburbs rather than the city. We can even get into the open country if we make a great effort. That immediately removes a load from the child's mind. Noise and dirt and over stimulation of many sorts are eliminated. Clean fresh air, a fine play place, healthy companionship, happier association, becomes possible at least to a greater extent than in the crowded city.

No you don't and furthermore you didn't even mention that it has something to do with Germany, and I know that much myself, so I believe your just talking, ma sed.

Which he properly was.

The family attitude is always in the control of the parents. If they decide that for the child's mental health the atmosphere shall be harmonious, that no bickering, no scolding, no confusion is to be known in the home, the children will stand a good chance of being healthy minded. If then the schedule of living for the children is set toward simplicity and healthy activity, if dress and food and entertainment are kept on the scale of living that fits into this idea of simplicity, they have a still better chance.

When a child of nine announces in loud tones that he is going to the movies tonight and makes a scene because he is told he cannot, when a child appears into the sulky gloom because he feels himself neglected, when he flies into a rage because he feels thwarted, when he keeps putting his undisciplined self between happiness and that self, his mental health is in danger of great unhappiness all his life.

But when a child knows that his pleasures come along in good season, that no reasonable request will be refused, when he is adjusted to a healthy routine of work and play, his mental health has been safeguarded, and his chances for success and happiness are far greater than that of the disturbed child. Mental health is to be safeguarded with the same anxious care that physical health is getting today. It is just as much in danger of infection from unhealthy minds as the bodily health is from unhealthy bodies. Habits have just as positive an effect on mind as on body.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

TREATY OF GHENT

On Dec. 24, 1814, the treaty of peace between the United States and England, ending the War of 1812, was signed at Ghent, Belgium.

The American commissioners at the signing were Gallatin, Bayard and John Quincy Adams.

England appeared eager to make peace not only because she was exhausted after her struggles with Napoleon on the continent, but also because she wished to reopen American trade. But in spite of the desire of both sides for peace, negotiations dragged on for a year and a half.

The treaty provided for: (1) the restoration of all territory seized during the war, except certain islands and near Passamaquoddy Bay, the disposition of which was referred to a commission; (2) a commission to settle boundary lines between the United States and Canada; (3) co-operation between this country and Great Britain in suppressing slave trade.

"Yes, my lord," replied the prisoner. "An alibi is proving that you was in one place when you was in another."—Tit-Bits.
